It was cold, the roads were dry, the wind biting and I never so many racers so eager to start a race. 30 second interval starts were never so welcome by racers, corner marshals and officials. Some riders who raced twice were shaking from cold as they waited for their count down. The roads were super clean after all the rain in the days leading up to race day. Now you may think not many showed up for this event but there were many there. Some felt it was too cold to race, some did not have enough clothes to stay warm, one locked her keys in the car but got a ride home retrieved spare set and road later when the temperature was a bit “warmer”. It took several hours to de-thaw several stuck to their bikes, there was no drummer playing on the third corner, thanks to the county officer on the third corner for slowing the traffic.
